Commentary: Seems that we once again will be listing coins on eBay. It has been a couple of years since we have had the time to list items on eBay but with Chi Middleton's help now, we hope to start listing as many as 25-50+ coins per week on eBay. We will be changing our eBay user name from steve.album (which will still remains Steve's personal account) to stephenalbumrarecoins. So we invite you to go to eBay and peruse our listings, just go to eBay's home page, click on the 'Buy' tab at upper left, then click on 'Advanced Search', then scroll down to 'From specific sellers (enter sellers' user IDs)', type in stephenalbumrarecoins, hit 'search' and there you are. You also just go to your 'My eBay' page and add us under your 'All Favorites - Sellers'

The New York International Coin Fair was the most successful show we have had, perhaps ever. There were substantial numbers of interesting coins for sale there, but prices were often high, if only because the euro had soared to about $1.30, and due to the American federal and trade debts, is likely to increase further. But because the international numismatic market remains healthy we "bit the bullet" and shelled out higher prices for rare coins than would have attracted us in the past. However, we were overwhelmed by the unrelenting onslaught of auctions, from Sunday the 7th to Monday the 15th of January. Needless to say, between other requirements, including some hours for meals and sleep, there was no way we could be present for every auction hour, not even for the relatively small proportion of lots that fall within our interests. Nonetheless, the auctions did not seem to have harmed our retail sales at the show table, nor our purchases at the show and in hotel rooms. Joe and I flew back to San Francisco on Sunday the 14th, and were thoroughly exhausted, taking it somewhat easy on Monday the 15th.

Having rested a day, worked for three days, I then flew to Atlanta and drove down to Perry, where I evaluated an estate collection of Islamic coins, then made a purchase offer which was accepted. Then several hours to pack up the coins and ship them back to Santa Rosa by registered mail. The chief features of the collection comprise Umayyad dirhams, a few Abbasid dirhams, and a remarkable group of Yemeni gold dinars from the 4th century Hejri. These will be represented on our forthcoming photo list #222.

Perry and the nearby city of Macon itself had some emotional memory for me, for about 1953 my father attempted to purchase the magazine and paperback book agency in Macon. We stayed a few nights at the New Perry Hotel, back when the better hotels were downtown, together with the usual retail shops. The New Perry is now a national historical building, and I had the pleasure of staying there for a few night, 53 years later. I also remembered the restaurant, well known for its southern cuisine, but it was briefly closed for renovation, due to reopen the day after I departed. I also had a few hours to visit Macon, about when I remember zilch from my last visit in 1953. The history walk in and around downtown is about five miles and absolutely fascinating. I would recommend it for anyone. Steve
