Commentary: With the recent financial turmoil affecting businesses across the world, we have been receiving a number of phone calls from concerned individuals regarding the state of the numismatic market and our opinion of where the market is heading. We have been wondering the same. It has always been our business model to carry a vast variety of items in terms of type and in terms of value. Our monthly lists, which alternate between inexpensive non-photo lists and more pricey photo lists, have provided us with a consistent influx of business. Our company has also started holding auctions, as well as minting and selling a number of different series of fantasy coins. That said, we are confident that our company has the diversity necessary to continue in today's market even if certain aspects of the business suffer a downturn. We can only hope that our good fortune will continue, and that friends and associates will be just as auspicious.

Keep in mind that, as far as the coin business in general is concerned, the recent financial events in the world may actually contribute to an increase in popularity of some coin markets. During the Great Depression in the United States in the 1930's, coin collecting took off in popularity among the average person for the first time. Before the Great Depression, coin collecting was reserved for the landed gentry, aristocracy and the wealthy. Collecting coins, or any collecting in general, can be a satisfying and relatively inexpensive form of stress relief. Something to keep in mind as we all navigate through this current financial quagmire.

Turning to more upbeat news, we have just hired a new part-time employee in the office. Danica Rodarmel is our new public relations representative. She will be assisting our accountant Jocelyn with our accounts receivables. She will also be helping out with various tasks around the office as needed.

Some of you may be surprised to find that our company website (www.stevealbum.com) has a whole new look. Monthly lists are now available for download in Adobe PDF format so you can print your own copy. A search function has been implemented so that our inventory can now be browsed by a vast variety of search terms. Be advised that this search function is brand new to us, so it is likely that there will be a few errors to work through with regards to items being displayed that have already sold, and other similar issues. Overall the search function should greatly increase the ease-of-use of our site.

Our upcoming auction, number 5, will take place on December 7th. Our consignment deadline has already passed. We will be holding a viewing of the lots from 8am to 6pm on December 5-6th at the San Francisco Historical Bourse (www.sfbourse.com). Visit the website for a coupon for $5 off the $10 attendance charge. The auction will be held in our usual online format, incorporating mail-in and fax bids, as well as phone bids (which must be arranged in advance). We look forward to your ongoing support of our fledgling auction business. - Mike
