Da Chao, meaning "Great Dynasty", was the Chinese name the Mongols used for themselves. According to Hartill, "This coin is alleged to have been cast by the legendary Genghis Khan at his capital at Karakorum." This would place the date about 50-60 years prior to the formal foundation of the Yuan dynasty in 1271. A more likely attribution is the reign of Kublai Khan (1260-1294), who understood China as the base of his power and made great efforts to Sinicize his image among his Chinese subjects. Upon gaining the title of the Great Khan in 1260, he moved his capital from Karakorum to Shangdu (in present-day Inner Mongolia), before moving it again to Dadu (Beijing) in 1271, a move which afforded him direct control of central China but also sparked an uprising in Karakorum. This coin would presumably have been produced after 1260 and before the introduction of his zhi yuan tong bao cash coins around 1285. It is currently estimated that approximately 200-250 specimens are known to exist.

A Lovely Pavilion Dollar, Hand-Engraved For Dr. R.M. Pearce, A Stunning Rarity!

1105. CHINA: Republic, AR dollar, year 10 (1921), Kann-676a, L&M-957, Hsu Shih-chang 'Pavilion' type, plain edge without bottom legend variety, hand-engraved DR. R. M. PEARCE on reverse, a lovely toned example and with accompanying original case and letter from the Office of the President of China! PCGS graded UNC details (for the engraving) $75,000 - 100,000

The Xu Shichang Dollar (Pavilion Dollar) is one of the most sought-after coins in Chinese numismatics. Dated Month 9 of Year 10 (1921), it depicts President Xu in a decorated Western-style suit jacket and a presidential sash. On the reverse, four figures in traditional Chinese robes greet one another on the steps of a pavilion, alongside the phrase ren shou tong deng ("Virtue and longevity ascend together"). Of all the varieties in silver, the plain-edge type with a hand-engraved name at the reverse bottom is by far the rarest, as this is only the 10th example to appear in a public auction since its first appearance in 1982. It is followed by the unengraved plain-edge type (K-676a), the unengraved reeded-edge type (K-676b), and, most commonly, the reeded-edge type with the legend ji nian bi ("commemorative coin", K-676).

The purpose behind the Pavilion Dollar is not entirely clear. Some writers have suggested it celebrates both President Xu's 66th birthday and 3rd anniversary in office (both occurring in October, which is the 9th month in the Chinese calendar). Others argue it was struck for the opening of the Peking Union Medical College (PUMC, beijing xiehe yixueyuan). Founded in 1906 by a group of British and American missionary organizations, the college sought to introduce Western medical education to China at a time when modern healthcare was practically non-existent in a nation of more than 400 million. It received generous support from the Rockefeller Foundation, which spent $8 million to construct a brand-new campus in the middle of Beijing. The dedication ceremony and the concurrent medical conference took place on Sept. 15-21, 1921. It was attended by a delegation led by John D. Rockefeller, Jr. himself. Also in attendance were many staff members of the college, government officials, as well as doctors from around China and the world.

To commemorate this event, the office of the President gave out this medal (K-676a) to the attendees, as attested by the accompanying letter. This likely took place at the dedication ceremonies on the afternoon of Sept. 19, when cabinet ministers delivered greetings on behalf of the President. Based on contemporary reports, we know that the people whose names appear on the medal were doctors (e.g. Dr. R. G. Mills) and staff (Miss Helen H. Holland) at PUMC, as well as visiting delegates (Mr. E. R. Embree) and conference attendees (Dr. J. A. Bussière). We can also surmise that many attendees received the medal but did not engrave their name on it (e.g. Dr. Andrew H. Woods), judging from the greater number of unengraved examples. This is perhaps because the engraver(s) at the event did not have enough time and only served some of the recipients, as suggested by the diverse positions of the names.

Born in Montreal, Canada, Dr. Richard M. Pearce (1874-1930) was a prominent professor of pathology based in New York City. From 1919 to his death, he was the Director of the Division of Medical Education of the Rockefeller Foundation. It was in that capacity that Dr. Pearce visited PUMC as a member of the delegation and received this medal. To our knowledge, his is the only example among the nine Pavilion Dollars to be certified uncirculated (PCGS #46508883, graded details solely due to the engraved name) and accompanied by the original case and letter. It is likely the finest example of this highly coveted type and a testament to the deep roots of US-China relations.

PCGS assigns details grades to these due to the engraving.

While the English and Chinese legends indicate Kwangsi (Guangxi) as the province, the Manchu characters do not read "boo gui" as expected, but might have been an attempt to spell out "boo hsi" by a foreign mint (possibly in Berlin).

Woodward believes it to be a trial piece as he only knew of a unique example, though more examples have surfaced since then. In the end, no machine-struck coins were issued for circulation in this province during the Empire.

All subsequent Republican issues render the province name as Kwang-sea or Kwang-si instead.

This type is said to have been issued in the 17th year of Daoguang's reign by the local government in order to pay troops to suppress a rebellion led by Zhang Wen. Its high purity (ca. 98%) and greater silver content than contemporary Western crowns made it a popular currency, as it is often found with numerous chopmarks. But this also led to many examples being melted down, which further contributes to its great scarcity today.

Taiwan did not have any machine-struck coinage until 1893, when the provincial government began producing silver 10 cents (7.2 mace) and 5 cents (3.6 mace). The output lasted for about a year and was permanently terminated when the Qing government ceded the island to Japan following the First Sino-Japanese (Jiawu) War. While the 10 cents is somewhat scarce, the 5 cents is exceedingly rare, with only two examples appearing in public auctions in the past 15 years: the Åke Lindén example in 2014, and the Norman Jacobs example in 2008.

The Tibetan legend "rin khor" is most probably a phonetic spelling of "rin sgor", which means "precious coin." The Kuping (transcribed as khu phon in Tibetan) "treasury standard" or "treasury scale" refers to the Kuping silver tael, the standard weight of which was fixed at 37.3121g in the late Qing Dynasty for payment of government taxes. 1215. TIBET: AV 20 srang, Gser-Khang Mint, BE15-53 (1919), Y-22, L&M-1063, autonomous Tibetan issue, no dot in reverse center, snow lion left, rab byung 15 ("cycle 15") above and lo 53 ("year 53") below, all within circle surrounded by the eight Buddhist auspicious emblems // stylized wheel with eight spokes, dga' ldan pho brang phyo(gs) las rnam rgyal tam srang 20 ("the Ganden palace, victorious in all directions, 20 tam srang"), numerous small scratches in fields, PCGS graded AU55 , ex Charles W. Lueders Collection $6,000 - 8,000

Most if not all Tibetan gold coins of 20 tam srang were struck between 1918 and 1921 in the Gser Khang Mint, which was located in the western part of Lhasa near the summer residence of the Dalai Lama, the Norbu Lingka. The meaning of gser khang is "gold house."

There exist gold coins of the dates 15-52 and 15-54 which feature a small bead in the center of the reverse and others which are without this bead. It is possible that this mark served to distinguish the issues which were struck by Tsarong from those which were struck by the Tibetan Government.

Charles XIV John (né Jean Bernadotte) was born in France and a marshal of the Napoleonic Empire when. In 1810, he was unexpectedly elected as the crown prince to the childless Charles XIII of Sweden and Norway. Napoleon supported this idea but asked that he never take up arms against France. Bernadotte refused on the ground of his obligations to Sweden, to which Napoleon exclaimed "Go, and let our destinies be accomplished" and signed the act of emancipation unconditionally. This decision would prove fateful as the new crown prince would go on to forge an alliance with Prussia and Sweden's perennial enemy, Russia, which would decisively defeat Napoleon in the War of the Sixth Coalition.

Therefore, by the Law 4 August 1688, the value of the silver and gold coins in circulation was increased by 20%. However, even approximately 150 years later, the denominations on coinage remained unchanged with the circulating coins having a value approximately 20% above the face value. Thus, the 400 réis marked value on this type meant that it would circulate at 480 réis.
